Citizenship Quiz for All Saints and Day of the Dead 2017
All Saints and Day of the Dead are part of a 3-day festival that remembers the lives of those who passed before us.

Nov 7, 2016 - Janet Reno served in President Clinton's cabinet as the first female U.S. Attorney General (1993–2001). What are two (other) Cabinet-level positions? (36)

Dec 8, 2016 - As an astronaut, John Glenn became the first American to orbit the earth. Later, he served as a US Senator from Ohio (1974–1999). Who is one of your state's U.S. Senators now? (20)

Dec 9, 2016 - Edwin Benson was a teacher and last speaker of the Mandan language, a tribe that hosted Lewis and Clark during their mission to explore territory bought from France (1804-1806). What territory did the United States buy from France in 1803? (71)

Dec 30, 2016 - Huston Smith was an American religious scholar and author. In 1990 the Supreme Court ruled that the use of peyote as a religious sacrament by Native Americans was not protected under the US Constitution. With Smith's help in 1994, Congress passed the American Indian Religious Freedom Act amendment, which gave legal protection to a religious practice that the Supreme Court had decided lacks constitutional protection. What is freedom of religion? (10)

Jan 14, 2017 - Kevin Starr was a historian and California State Librarian. Like Benjamin Franklin, Starr was a writer and published 9 books on the history of California, 6 of which are part of his Americans and the California Dream series. What is one thing Benjamin Franklin is famous for? (68)

Feb 18 Norma McCorvey was a political activist and plaintiff in U.S. Supreme Court case Roe v. Wade in which the Supreme Court ruled that individual state laws banning abortion are unconstitutional. Later she became a pro-life activist. What does the judicial branch do? (37)

Feb 22 Eni Faleomavaega was a Vietnam War vet and served in the American Samoan Delegate to the U.S. House of Representatives (1989–2015). Name your U.S. Representative. (23)

Mar 14, 2017 - In 1951, Lillie Mae Bradford was arrested because she challenged a racist bus driver who overcharged her for a bus fare. In 2006, The Rosa Parks Act allowed activists who had been arrested to request a pardon. Although clearing her arrest record wouldn't have a real effect, Bradford applied for a pardon. 'I want to have it removed, frame it, and put it on the wall,' Bradford said. 'It will show I was arrested fighting for my rights.'" What movement tried to end racial discrimination? (84)

July 23, 2017 - Thomas Fleming was a writer and historian who published many books about the people and events of the American Revolutionary War. Why did the colonists fight the British? (61)

Oct 18, 2017 - With the financial support of NOW Legal Defense and Education Fund, Rita Henley Jensen founded Women's eNews, an online news service for all women and news wire for commercial media. Jensen inspired thousands of women to use the power of the internet to speak their Truth. What are two rights of everyone living in the United States? (51)